THE BRITISH CHESS FEDERATION

The BCF is to change its name to the English Chess Federation, but will retain the name of BCF "for legacies".

That will save you the legal costs of a codicil.

THE LATE MIKE FOX

Many of you will already know that Mike Fox passed away a few weeks ago at the age - I believe - of 71, after a short time in hospital.

Mike was a member of the Warley Quinborne club and co-author of "The Complete Chess Addict" and its sequel. The following comes from Peter Gibbs' column in the Birmingham Post, and is quoted with permission: -

He first set up, in conjunction with Richard James, a junior club in Richmond which has been most successful. When he came to Birmingham he continued his interest in junior chess by setting up the Checkmate club about 15 years ago. It has been an immense and successful operation which has encouraged hundreds of youngsters to take up the game. The number of local junior champions who have started there is massive and the number of national champions must run into double figures. He was a Warwickshire county player and his swashbuckling style was reminiscent of 19th century players. His love and enthusiasm for the game meant that he was a recognised figure nationally. He had a regular column in the 'Chess' magazine.

Mike had many interests other than chess. He was a leading figure in the advertising world. He taught English in schools. When he was at Sheffield University and the Sorbonne he was involved in running but did not take it up again until later in life. His speciality was the 800 metres. In 1996 he won the European competition for the over-60s at Malmo, in 1998 he won the European competition for the over-65s in Italy and in 1999 he came third at Gateshead in the World Championship. In March 2004 he won the World Indoor Championship for the over-70s in Stuttgart and in August he came second at Aarhus in the European Championship. He was keen, competitive and kindly in everything he did. I have lost a personal friend and I know the chess world is much the loser at his passing.
